Track 24

6 Listen to each response and match it to the question it answers.

I had been asking my parents to get me a puppy for a long, long time, but they kept saying no because they didn't think I was responsible enough to take care of a pet. When I finally got a puppy for my birthday, I felt great because I knew my parents felt I was responsible enough to take care of it.

b. Speaker #2: The strangest food that I have tried is raw beef. I ate this in a restaurant near my house. My father told me that it was a traditional food from some country, but I can't remember which one. I didn't really like it, so I haven't eaten it again since then.

Track 54

6 Listen to each response and match it to the question it answers.

Response #1: I don't think that online education is of equal quality to education received in a regular classroom. I consider online education impersonal and uninvolved. I think students get more chances to deepen what they learn through talking with peers when they are in a classroom. Classrooms also provide competition to encourage students to try harder.

Response #2: No, I don't think that the government should control the Internet. The Internet is merely the sharing of ideas. The government has no right to control which ideas we can share and which ideas we cannot. The government cannot limit what we say on the telephone, so it should not limit what we can type. We should be allowed to access whatever we want on the Internet.

Response #3: There are many drawbacks to Internet use in education. However, I think the main drawback is people's inability to distinguish reliable, trustworthy information. If teachers do not teach students about proper Internet use, students might read something that is untrue. b. Speaker #2: Yes, I have. One book that I read and that was also made into a movie is Jaws. The book came out first. Then, the story was made into a famous movie. I think the director did a good job when he changed that story into a movie.

c. Speaker #3: It is important to read classical literature because people expect you to know about those stories. If you are talking to someone and they find out you don't know some classical work, they might assume you didn't do well in school. Or they might think you didn't even finish school!

6 Listen to each response and match it to the question it answers.

Response #1: My favorite library is my city's main library, which is located close to my house. I typically go there about once a month. I normally check out books, but I can also check out magazines and DVDs as well.

Response #2: My favorite book is the travel book series Lonely Planet. I love these books because they give me great information. They have beautiful pictures as well as really important tips about getting around. They also have really handy maps that help me to know where I am going.

Response #3: My favorite writer is Dan Brown. He wrote The da Vinci Code as well as other books. He is able to combine suspense and a great story with historical evidence. When I start reading one of Dan Brown's books, I cannot put it down until I have finished it. He's a great author.
